

HEALTH, SAFETY AND ENVIRONMENT POLICY – DECEMBER 2006

With reference to the design, production, construction, sale and installation of energy and telecom cables, accessories and systems, like the supply of related services, Prysmian treats the protection of the wholeness, health and well-being of its employees and of the environment as one of the primary criteria for the organisation of its activities.

For this purpose all Group companies shall undertake to comply with the following principles:

- compliance with applicable legislation and observation of commitments to safeguard occupational health and safety and the environment;
- governance of their activities by adopting systems to manage occupational health and safety and the environment that comply with international standards, with a commitment to making continuous improvements;
- optimisation of consumption of renewable resources and raw materials and prevention of pollution, by identifying, monitoring and minimising the environmental impact of their processes/products;
- identification of the dangers connected with their activities, assessment of any risks for occupational health and safety and their elimination by taking adequate preventative measures, or minimisation of such risks by adopting systems for collective and individual protection;
- involvement of every level of the organisation and everyone who works for the Group, ensuring that operating responsibilities and procedures are precisely defined, appropriately communicated and are the subject of specific training;
- communication and distribution of information about occupational health and safety and the environment to internal and external stakeholders, in accordance with specific procedures locally and centrally.

This policy is published and distributed to all Group companies.

Prysmian is committed to the continuous improvement of its policy and programmes and adopts procedures, rules and instructions that ensure that the values expressed in this policy are reflected in the conduct of each company and in that of its employees and staff.
